The parties have discussed a number of areas of mutual interest, and the following areas were identified for possible future collaboration: (1) Exchange of undergraduate and graduate students; (2) Exchange of faculty and professional staff for the development of research, learning, and university extension programs; (3) Development of joint research projects in disciplines and fields of mutual interest; (4) Development of pedagogical, scientific, and technical seminars and meetings; (5) Exchange of information concerning academic programs and the development of programs which may be of mutual interest to both institutions.
